DECLINE IN EXCHANGE

REFLECTS AN INCREASE IN FOR-EIGN BILLS AGAINST COTTON.

London Prices for American Securities Advancing-Local Markets Active-Grain Lower.

At New York yesterday money on call was firmer at 21/03 per cent.; last loan, 3; closed, 3.

Prime mercantile paper, 4% 25% per cent. Sterling exchange was weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87\2@4.87% for demand and $4.861/64.86% for sixty days; posted rates, $4.87@4.88 and $4.88@4.89; commercial bills, $4.86. Silver certificates, 671/667%c; bar silver, Mexican dollars, 58%c.

Total sales of stocks were 286,351 shares, cluding the following: American Sugar, 22,780; American Tobacco, 34,100; Atchison, assessment paid, 17,300; Burlington, 25,200; Chicago Gas. 33,300; Distilling, 12,400; General Electric, 4,200; Louisville & Nashville, 4,000; Missouri Pacific, 8,400; Ontario & Western, 8,300; Reading, 29,300; Rock Island, 13,500; St. Paul, 29,400; Tennessee Coal and Iron, 9,300; United States Leather, preferred, 4,700; Wheeling & Lake Eric, 6,700. There were but few factors bearing generally on New York 'Change speculation yesterday aside from a decline in the sterling exchange market and an advance in the rates for call money. The first mentioned condition is the result of the operation of the normal influences at this season and reflects an increased movement of bills, chiefly drawn against cotton. The f bills, chiefly drawn against cotton. The ontinued large shipments of currency to he interior, and principally to the cotton istributing points, have caused a steady hrinkage in the surplus reserve of the lew York associated banks, and the result hardening tendency for money. The on prices for American securities ed advances in nearly all instances, some busing for that account was red in this market. The local speculaon showed an increase in activity over the recent average, but the movement of rices was irregular. As usual of late the recution of commission orders was greatly approportionate to the professional dealings. The leading shares in extent of business.

ings. The leading shares in extent of business were Chicago Gas, Tobacco, St. Paul, Reading, Burlington and Sugar. The opening was active and strong, with general fractional gains. A vigorous drive was soon made, however, against the market, in which the grangers and industrials were the chief sufferers. Around delivery hour the market received support and gains were recorded. Sugar was helped by further advances in the foreign and domestic product. Leather was unfavorably affected by the contest between the United States Leather Company and the independent tanners. mion tanned sole leather and sympatheti-cally in all other grades. Speculation left off strong in tone, with final prices in the main lower than at the close of the pre-

The railway and miscellaneous bond market was moderately active, the sales aggregating $1,514,000. The tone of the market was weak and most of the issues traded in recorded declines during the greater part of the day. In the late dealings a better tone prevailed and some slight recoveries were recorded. nment bonds came in for a fair of attention and sales were recorded of $50,000 new fours, coupon; $8,000 fives, registered; $1,000 fives, coupon, and $10,000 fours, registered, at unchanged prices, except for the latter, which gained ¼ per cent. The fours, coupon, were bid up ¼ per cent. in the morning, but lost the improvement in the afternoon. State issues were Cayuga (N. Y.) Chief. It makes one sick to read the effusions of city poets about the "waving golden-rod," which they appear to regard as the acme of floral beauty. In fact, the golden-rod is a stinking weed, covered with creen flies and noxious insects.

FURTHER DECLINE

BIG RECEIPTS AND WEAK CABLES SENT WHEAT DOWN 1-2C.

Large Increase in the Visible One of the Main Weakening Factors-Provisions Alone Advanced.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.-Big receipts and weak cables sent wheat down to-day, December closing 1/2 lower. May corn lost 1/4c and May oats 24c, but provisions made moderate gains. Wheat ruled quiet and weak. Nearly all the early influences were against the price. Cables were dull and weak, domestic markets heavy, the deliveries in the Northwest large-about the largest on record, and there was a heavy increase expected in the visible supply. All these conditions had a depressing effect on holders and there was more or less liquidation and short selling, resulting in the decline. Later, however, when it became evident that the increase in the visible would not be as large as estimated the feeling began to strengthen some and there was a gradual recovery of %c. But trade was quiet throughout and price changes were comparatively narrow. December opened at 594c, sold off to 58%c, then up to 59%c, but weakened and at noon was back to 59c. Trade was slow during the last hour, December sold from 59%c to 58%c and closed at 59c

Corn was quiter, about featureless, but with weakness the rule. Liberal arrivals, weaker cables and sympathy with the de-pression in wheat were the weak factors. October sold early at 30c to 29%c and May at 29%c to 29c. The feeling ruled weaker during the last hour and May sold to 28%c and closed there. Oats dull and easier, in sympathy with the decline in wheat and closed at 20%c. Provisions—Shorts were incited to cover some part of their lines. cited to cover some part of their lines on account of the hog cholera talk which, although believed to be more exaggerated, still created some uneasiness and caused a moderate advance in pork and ribs. January pork gained 71/2c; January lard closed unchanged and January ribs closed .021/2c

THE ALADDIN OVEN. Experiences and Suggestions of One Who Has Tried It.

New York Times. Gratitude for articles tending to broaden the knowledge of the housewife in a scien-tific and modern way induces this appre-ciative reader to contribute some cooking experiences that it is hoped by her may aid in the same good work. These experiences are with the Aladdin oven, that valuable, our day by Edward Atkinson. That it has not been "enthusiastically adopted," or that its success has been delayed, its inventor attributes, and the Times correspondent indorses the charge, to the astounding inertia of women.

"It seems," writes this correspondent to the editor, "to be a nearly, if not quite, perfect method of cooking; a method which, if universally adopted, would revolutionize our whole domestic economy. Labor would be saved; the precious energy wasted in sweltering and stewing over a hot stove would be conserved; food would be more savory and more nutritious; money would be spared for education; cheerfulness would be promoted, morality increased, and sin lessened; for it is true beyond a peradventure that much of the drunkenness, and through it, the crime of to-day is due to mal-nutrition—the lack of proper food properly prepared. Not only is life itself a matter of nutrition, but the whole moral tone of a nation dependent upon the food of the people. The excesses of the Commune in Paris were doubtless the result of the diseased mental condition of the inhabitants after the famine. after the famine.

"Add to all this the facts that this improved method does not require one to go through any new training; does not demand a modicum of the exercise of the brain that is implied in the present methods; that it is not necessarily expensive—petroleum is cheap and the oven is not more expensive than a cooking stove; moreover, there is no patent on it, and you can make one yourself. Mr. Atkinson has somewhere given the directions. Taking all these facts into account, we are ready to exclaim with Mr. Atkinson, "Truly, the inertia of woman is astounding!" I have known parties of women to attend with apparent enthusiasm a demonstration of the work of the Aladdin oven, then go home and continue in the old laborious way over the red-hot stove. Their grandmothers did it so, and their mothers, too, and it is good enough for them also. Ex uno disce omnes.

"As I was reading the Times this morning I recalled a well-written article that appeared in your issue of Aug. 5, on "Faulty American Cooking." The recollection was due to a train of associations which start from the fact that I am indebted to the Aladdin oven for the leisure to read the Times this morning and to enjoy with my family and guests the matchless beauty of the sea.

"A few days ago our rather competent

"A few days ago our rather competent cook deserted us here at our summer home—a proceeding which would have hurried us back to town save for the possession of an Aladdin oven.

"When the cook hal departed we let down the fire in the big stove, trimmed up the lamp under the Aladdin oven, and kept on the even tenor of our way with no serious inconvenience to any one. To-day, for instance, family and guests are enjoying a morning out of doors within sight and touch of the ocean spray, while the dinner is cooking itself in the little cottage a few rods back of us.

"This is the way we manage it. During breakfast a Rochester lamp was lighted and set in its place under the Alaidin oven, that the oven might be brought to the proper temperature in time to put in the materials for dinner. Dinner is to be at I o'clock "At 10 o'clock we placed in the oven, on the first and second landing respectively, two cuts of beef—one from the finest rib cuts and the other from the neck. On the topmost shelf we placed the materials of a rice pudding—staply a teaspoon il of rice in a quart of milk, with the proper sweetening. Beside it we placed a dish of corn which had been grated from the cobafter the tough outer skin had been removed, and prepared for corn pudding, Southern fashion. On the table were left Southern fashion. On the table were left for later disposition some sweet and some white potatoes, to be baked in their jackets; a dish of quartered peaches, to be cooked for a compote—German fashion; a dish of tomatoes to be escalloped, and a small dish of vermicelli; in the refrigerator was left a bluefish ready for cooking in the platter in which it was to be served.

"The purveyor for the day then joined the others by the surf for nearly three hours of uninterrupted good time, reading and talking. Among other things we got in several chapters of Dowdin's "New Studies in Literature," and your big Sunday sheet.

"At 12 o'clock one of the young gentlemen went up to the house and put into the oven the fish and the other dishes mentioned, finding his ingenuity put to the test in placing the dishes as directed and getting all in the somewhat contracted space. He averred that he did not burn his fingers. He averred that he did not burn his fingers.
At 12:50 all was ready to serve. All the viands except the beef were cooked in the plain porcelain dishes in which they were served—thus saving the washing of a relay of pots and pans. A small gas stove (an oil stove or a spirit lamp will do as well) serves to boil water for tea or coffee and to make hot the soup, which made itself in the oven the night before.

"The object in having the two diverse cuts of beef to-day was to demonstrate to the obliging young gentleman above mentioned that if he had to pay for one of the pieces of meat he would save 15 cents a pound by choosing the neck cut—and, moreover, that he would have the satisfaction of knowing that he was furnishing 5 per cent, more poteine—the material that does the work of building and repairing the tissues of the body—and would find the cheaper ece of meat as well flavored as the dearer

"The dinner just described is not a Delmonico repast, by any means—it is, indeed, very nearly the plainest living upon which one can do any genuinely high thinking—but it is wholesome; it counts for the right proportion of nutrient principles; it is economical, for there has been no waste in cooking, and it is savory, because all the juices and flavor have been preserved instead of being allowed to escape in steam and fly all over the country.

"This simple, deliciously cooked meal could be served each day, with variations, in any office or workshop without labor and without confusion. The meat would be pre-pared by the butcher, and the vegetables require but little attention; an intelligent boy could prepare them and could soon learn by experience the different times re-quired for the different articles and different cuts of meat. This once known, the con-tents of the oven need absolutely no atten-tion from the time they are put in until the time to remove them."

Things to Remember.

Never forget that the silver dollar is a legal tender to any amount.
